

5118

5118

Michael Chekhov

November 12, 1940

STYLE

STYLE:

There are very clearly defined styles, but in addition to these there are many many styles which lie in between. Tragedy: In tragedy we find man in relationship to super-beings and sub-beings. This is true also of Clown style - they are in connection with other beings apart from man. Drama: In drama we are always concerned with man's relationship to man. This is true also of Comedy. Tragedy and Clown are always "they" and "me," while Drama and Comedy are always "me."

11/12/40